STATISTICS OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

1919-1920

INTRODUCTION

The increasing burden placed upon the public schools through the broadening fields of service demanded of them by the public, the insistence on better qualified and trained teachers, and the task of adjusting the school plant to meet normal demands again after the curtailments caused by the war has naturally brought about an increasing money investment in public education. Good schools cost money and we cannot have them unless we are willing to pay the price.

Those responsible for the administration of our public schools are quite conscious of the problem these changes are bringing about, and appreciate their responsibility in working out the proper solution. It is realized that funds can be made available for expansion in only two ways. First, in case taxes levied are not expended in the most economical way, in returning to the public the greatest educational values possible, then steps should be taken to see that they are more efficiently used. Secondly, by asking for more revenue, that is, by increasing taxes. The public is demanding a more intelligent accounting of the taxes collected, and when once it is assured that taxes paid are returning to its children the best education possible for the price paid, it gladly meets the increased tax burden made necessary by intelligently planned educational needs.

The determination as to whether funds now available are economically and intelligently expended, depends on the establishment of standards and unit costs. We have been slow to apply scientific principles and good business management to the administration of our public schools. School districts or administrative units vary from the one teacher district to districts employing over 8,000 teachers, thus making the problem of determining costs and establishing standards quite varied and complex. It is therefore essential in the securing of statistical data from which accurate and intelligent studies of costs and other important factors in education can be made that the problems involved be appreciated and the movement supported by all school administrators. The following are important factors to be considered in the collecting, recording, and the interpretation of statistical data:

a The original records must be complete and accurate.

b There must be a real appreciation of the value, importance and limitations of statistical data.

c Terms used must be uniform and their definition uniformly agreed upon.

d Blanks or forms upon which statistical data are reported must be complete, readily understood, and easily filled out with minimum effort, and as near a duplicate of original source record as possible.

e Reports must be filed promptly.

f Care should be exercised in the interpretation and use made of the statistical data presented.

To this end, on the accounting side, a uniform system for all districts has been established. This system was put into operation in the fall of 1920. Financial statistics for the year 1919-1920 and years previous have therefore not been based upon such uniform accounting records. The records for the year 1920-1921 represent the first year the new accounting system was in operation.

The report forms upon which the statistical data have been submitted were very carefully prepared in order that those responsible for filing these reports might be relieved of all unnecessary labor, and to assure uniform, accurate, and reliable records. We believe that each year will see a marked improvement in the reports, and in the reliability and accuracy of the data presented.

The purpose of this bulletin is to supply source material, in the most convenient and available form, in order that students of education, and school officers, and others interested in education, may have such information conveniently available as will help them in the study of their own educational problems. The financial statistics presented here should be of great service to those responsible for the preparation of the school budget, in the defense of the present program or to prove the need for additional funds.

The printing yearly of such statistical data as will be of real service, is a problem requiring very careful study. It is impracticable to print all the statistical data available. We have endeavored to select the material that would be of most value, and most of the tables presented should be published annually. The statistical data not published herewith is on permanent file in the Department and is available for those desiring access to them, either directly by making use of the material here or through correspondence.

Statistical data to be of other than historic value, should be published as early after it has been gathered as is possible. This of course cannot be done unless reports are filed with the Department promptly. We are hoping that the situation will develop whereby the material may become available to the public not less than six months after the close of the school year.

The data published in this bulletin have been recorded from the following reports:

Annual District Financial Reports
 Superintendent's Annual Reports
 High School Principal's Reports
 Report of Rural Schools and Institutions
 Institute Reports
 Teacher's Attendance Reports
 Application for Appropriation

The financial data printed here is given to the nearest dollar; for example, $2167.54 is recorded as $2168, and $516.12 is recorded as $516. This in no way effects the accuracy, but makes possible a better organization of the tabulated material. In a number of cases it was unfortunately necessary to insert data for a previous year, on account of delay or failure of Superintendents to file complete reports. We appreciate the difficulty school officials have had in adjusting the data the first year to new forms and interpreting new terminology. The difficulty will decrease year by year, and every effort will be made by the Department to eliminate all unnecessary and superfluous reports.

General Statement, 1919-1920. The statistics found in Table 1, column 2, have been taken from the preliminary announcement of the Fourteenth Census, issued about November 1, 1920, and from the annual reports of the secretaries of the school boards throughout the state. The assessed valuation of property taxable for school purposes, recorded in column 3, represents the last adjusted valuation of real estate and other property as reported by the proper county and municipal authorities. Percentage estimates of assessed valuation of property are based on the best opinion locally that was available. It is believed that in many cases these estimates err on the side of being too liberal. The true valuation of real estate, shown in the fifth column, is the quotient of the assessed valuation by the estimated percentage as indicated in column four. The tax rate represents the actual number of mills levied for school purposes. Valuation of school property includes appraisal estimates of sites, buildings, textbooks and equipment by the local school officials. The value of this table is conditioned on whether or not original costs have been reported or full recognition is given to allowances for depreciation.

A summary of the totals of the first, second, third and fourth class districts is appended for comparative purposes.

Receipts, 1919-1920. Table 2 is designed to indicate in a general way the larger sources from which support of the public schools is obtained. The revenue producing income is shown in the second, fourth, fifth and sixth columns and the non-revenue in column three.

Balance on hand the first Monday of July includes such cash as is available for the new fiscal year, according to the secretary's book. In certain districts it was difficult to determine whether or not sinking fund (money to be used for redemption of bonds) balances were included in the item.

Receipts from bonds and loans are shown in the third column. They include all moneys accruing from bond issues during the year, and from short term loans negotiated but not paid back during the same fiscal period.

Income from taxes covers all local revenues from general property, personal property and occupational sources. Receipts from state appropriations include moneys due districts on the basis of their enumerated school children and the number of their teachers, the high school appropriation, and the state's share of subsidy for vocational education. The appropriation here recorded is not necessarily the State money appropriated for that year, but the amount actually paid the districts. It is to be observed that the State has usually paid appropriations from one to six months after they are due. Other receipts include returns from Sundry Sources.

Payments for Current Expenses, Capital Outlay and Debt Service, 1919-1920. Includes a tabulation of funds expended for the operation and maintenance of the schools, for all increases in property values and for payment of debts. Under the former are included expenses of general control, instruction, operation, maintenance, auxiliary agencies, and fixed charges, all known jointly as current expense; under the latter are the two items of capital outlay and debt service, both looking primarily to plant extensions and equipment, and liquidation of indebtedness.

Under expenses of general control are included all fees, salaries and supplies paid out for the general administrative functions of the system, such as fees to auditors, tax collectors, and attorneys; enforcement of compulsory attendance laws; salaries of secretaries, treasurers and local superintendents of schools; and office requirements. Instruction covers all moneys paid out for teaching, supervision, textbooks and supplies; operation, those expenses due to fuel, light, power, janitors and janitorial service. Maintenance refers strictly to repairs of buildings, grounds and equipment. Auxiliary agencies, to such payments as those spent for libraries, health, rent, transportation of pupils, etc.; and fixed charges for costs that are more or less definite and fixed, such as rent, retirement fund allowances, insurance, and taxes.

Under expenses of capital outlay are included all moneys paid out for improvements of buildings, grounds and equipment and for the erection of buildings and installation of equipment therein. Debt service accounts for all liquidation of indebtedness through the channels of bond payments, directly or indirectly, settlement of temporary loans, payments of interest, and refunds of taxes and tuition.

In this table a detailed analysis of the percentage distribution of expenditures is made. It is believed that school officials can make excellent use of this table in the analysis of their budget. It is to be observed that slight variations from the standard have no significance.

Class of district	General control.	Instruction.	Operation.	Maintenance.	Auxiliaries.	Fixed charges.	Total current expense.	Capital outlay.	Debt service.	Total payments.

Bonds, Loans, and Balance on Hand, July 1920. Table 4 aims to show the actual indebtedness situation in each district at the close of the fiscal year, 1919-1920. In the second, third and fourth columns are found data pertaining to the total bonded indebtedness in each district. The next three columns cover temporary loans negotiated during the year and not paid back. In certain instances it was difficult to determine whether or not loans made and repaid during the year were included in the totals. Reports of totals in sinking fund are made in the next column. The balance on hand July 1920 is intended to include only the actual cash balance available for school purposes for 1920-1921. The correctness of the last two columns is contingent on the care exercised by secretaries to differentiate properly between these two items. This is the first year that the data have been asked for and we believe in subsequent years more accurate information relative to indebtedness will be available.

Distribution of Expenses of General Control. General control means, specifically, that function which relates to the administration, regulation, direction, and control of school affairs and activities. Columns 2 to 6, inclusive, cover all expenditures for fees and salaries of the personnel intimately connected with the financial accounting of the system. Column 2 includes not only the secretary's salary but the expenses of the office of the school board. In all cities and the larger boroughs all outlays incident to maintaining additional facilities for the accommodation of the business department, such as office buildings, and so forth, are listed in this same column.

The joint cost of enforcing the compulsory attendance laws and the enumeration of school children is shown in column 7.

Expenses of educational administration include the salaries of district superintendents and such contributory costs as are associated with a superintendent's office. These are listed in columns 8 and 9.

In addition to the regular summary which is found at the end of the table, a supplementary table of averages is given. The results were computed by using a divisor varying according to the frequency of the item reported.

Distribution of Expenses of Instruction. An attempt is made in Table 6 to classify in a somewhat detailed form the various expenditures that enter into the more immediate field of teaching and supervision. Entries under Salaries of Principals and Supervisors comprise such moneys as are expended for purely supervisory purposes, including clerical service. Any time spent by such persons in a teaching capacity is apportioned to the column on Teachers' Salaries. Under Other Expenses of Principals are entered such items as expenses for school visiting, attending conventions, etc. Salaries of Teachers refers specifically to the amount paid for actual teaching. Textbooks include amounts spent for regular texts, supplementary books, and all freight and drayage expenses incident thereto. Supplies involve all material of this nature ordinarily purchased each year, but do not include additions of equipment which increase the value of school property.

In order to show more in detail what proportionate amount of current expense is spent for such phases of instruction as teachers' salaries, textbooks, etc., Table 6a is presented. Each number represents a percentage value of current expense. For instance, the first horizontal line of figures means that of the total amount of money spent for current expense in first class districts, 5.2% of it went for principals' and supervisors' salaries, 61.9% for teachers' salaries, 1.7% for textbooks, 2.1% for supplies, and 2.7% for other expenses of instruction. The main purpose of the table is to exhibit the relative amounts of money spent for the several phases of instruction in the four different classes of districts in the state.

School Attendance Statistics, 1919-1920. Table 7 has been arranged to show to what degree children in Pennsylvania are attending the public schools. The school census of children between six and sixteen years of age is placed first as it is the basis for determining the enforcement of the compulsory attendance law.

The next item concerns itself with the total number of pupils who were enrolled in the elementary and secondary departments of the public schools, throughout the year. Lastly, the average daily attendance of these same pupils, by districts, is given.

While the standing of the districts of the state in the matter of pupil accounting is somewhat indicated in this table, it is not presumed that the figures shall be regarded as final. On account of the omission, on the part of certain districts, of information pertaining to registrations of certain pupils in different districts in the state during the year, statistics on total enrollment obviously involve some duplications. Also no provision has been made to classify in groups those pupils who are between six and eight years of age and do not come under the attendance law, those who are from fourteen to sixteen and out of school on legal permits, those who are over sixteen, and those registered in private or parochial schools. A full accounting would require complete data on each of these groups.

TABLE 8

Enforcement of Compulsory Education Laws. Table 8 is organized to make an accounting of the elements that enter into the operation of the compulsory attendance law. While correct reports were obviously made in the majority of cases, any conclusion drawn from the totals should be accepted with caution. Attention is called to this on account of there being no records from third class districts not under their own superintendents, which are indicated by an asterisk; the absence of reports from two second class districts; and of the difference in heading between fourth class districts and all other districts, as shown in column 2. Care was exercised to omit any inclusion of vacation certificates where such were reported.

Number and Distribution of Teachers. The total number of teachers employed in the public schools of the state as reported by the county and district superintendents is shown in Table 9. The classification into elementary, junior high school, high school, and vocational groups provides some means for differentiation according to the grade of work pursued, yet the lack of a clear definition of terms makes it difficult to steer clear of loose reporting. It is assumed, also, that no administrative officers are included.

Kindergarten and elementary teachers listed in columns 2 and 3 refer, in the majority of cases, to the number employed in kindergartens and in an eight-grade organization. With the growing tendency toward a junior high school administrative unit, provision is made in columns 4 and 5 to report such teachers. The trustworthiness, however, of the figures of this latter division is contingent on the interpretation given to it by the superintendents. The next two columns include teachers in high schools other than junior high schools. Columns 8 and 9 cover those instructors employed in independent vocational schools.

Number of Teachers of Special Subjects. The purpose of Table 10 is to give the number of teachers in the state who are engaged in the teaching of special subjects as distinguished from the traditional or academic types of studies.

TABLE 11

Number and Character of Certificates. The number and character of certificates held under the laws of the Commonwealth are shown in Table 11. The information which has been furnished by county and district superintendents is complete save for the cities of Pittsburgh and Meadville and for Allegheny, Columbia, Northampton and Tioga counties. No data were available for the 5,371 teachers in these districts. All certificates are listed in accordance with the provisions of the law as enumerated in Sections 1301-1324. Temporary and permanent special certificates recorded in columns 11 and 12 refer to licenses issued by the Superintendent of Public Instruction, by examination or otherwise, to teachers of kindergartens, drawing, music, manual training, physical training, and other special branches. Endorsement certificates in column 13 cover such credentials as are issued by other states and are validated by the Department of Public Instruction in this state.

TABLE 12

Distribution of Teachers' Salaries. In order to show how monthly salaries of Pennsylvania teachers are grouped, Table 12 is compiled from the superintendents' reports. In evaluating or comparing salaries attention is called to the fact that the distribution is based on a variable yearly employment period rather than on a uniform length of term. All amounts in column 2 are over $60, that being the minimum allowed by law. The discrepancy in totals between Table 9 and this table, is due, to the omission of full data.

TABLE 12a

Average Monthly Salary in Fourth Class Districts. A supplementary table on salaries aiming to furnish information as to how much, on the average, is paid to male and female teachers in elementary and high schools in fourth class districts. The statistics have been collected from the annual district reports.

TABLE 13

Tabular Statement Covering Experience of Teachers, and Permanency in Present Position. The first section of table 13 aims to show the number of teachers who have been in service one year, two years, three years, and more than three years, respectively, whether in the present system or in other districts. The second division, included in columns 7-11, seeks to determine on the whole how long these same teachers have remained in their present positions.

TABLE 14

Length of School Term. Table 14 shows the number of districts in the state maintaining school terms less than seven months in length, seven, eight, eight and one-half, nine, nine and one-half, and ten months, respectively.

TABLE 15

Number of Buildings and Classrooms. The total number of buildings devoted to school purposes in cities and rural districts is shown in Table 15. Distribution into one, two, and more than two room houses is indicated with a separation into elementary and secondary units. The total number of classrooms available for use is also included. The statistics on the whole are believed to be reliable, yet there is a possibility of some duplication in reporting buildings as elementary or high school. Also, in certain instances where elementary and secondary work was pursued in the same building, it became a matter of judgment in determining the classification.

TABLE 16

Vocational Schools and Departments. This table has been organized to give general information relative to general industrial, unit trade, agricultural and home economics' schools and departments. The number of such schools with their respective enrollments is shown in each instance, and differentiation into all day, part time and evening classes indicated. Statistics pertaining to unit trade, agricultural and home economics types are felt to be reliable as far as reported. Concerning the general industrial schools, however, there was obviously some doubt in the minds of the superintendents when formulating their reports, which was indicated by the inclusion of various descriptive terms.

TABLE 17

Open Air Schools. A table to show the location and enrollment statistics of the schools now organized as reported by the several superintendents.

TABLE 18

Vacation Schools. A brief table showing average number of days in session, total number of teachers employed, total enrollment of pupils, in elementary and secondary departments, and average daily attendance of these same pupils.

TABLE 19

Evening Schools. A table arranged by districts covering all pupils enrolled in evening schools, with their distribution into elementary, secondary, vocational and Americanization courses. Statistics in each department are further indicated to show the number and length of sessions, number of teachers, and enrollment of minor and adult students, with their average attendance.

SECONDARY SCHOOL STATISTICS

The statistics recorded in this section aim to account for all pupils in the state pursuing secondary school studies. They include the total enrollments in public high schools, rural vocational schools of a secondary grade, and private schools doing secondary work.

The data of public high schools were compiled in accordance with the classification authorized in the School Code. High schools of the First Class maintain four years' courses of study, are not less than nine months in session, and are required to employ not less than three properly qualified teachers throughout the entire term. High schools of the Second Class give three-year courses of study, have a minimum term of eight months, and employ not less than two properly qualified teachers the entire term. High schools of the Third Class have a course of study two years in length.

Rural Community Vocational Schools are schools of a secondary grade whose controlling purpose is to emphasize rural life. They are organized under the direction of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and are supported by joint local, state and federal funds.

Private secondary school data were compiled from blanks sent out to all secondary schools whose location could be obtained. With a few exceptions, the returns were full and prompt. As no effort was made to obtain statistics from private elementary schools, no such data are given, simply a listing of the names of the different schools, with their locations, in so far as reports were obtainable.

A complete summary covering all data found in the tables, arranged under the three-class division and including figures for comparative purposes, is placed at the beginning rather than the end of the tables on secondary schools.

Evaluation of High School Enrollments, 1919-1920. The purpose of this table is to indicate the holding power exercised in the public schools of Pennsylvania through the upper educational levels. Column 2 records the 1920 census figures; column 3 the total school enrollments; column 4 and 5 the total seventh and eighth grade registrations; and column 6 the complete high school enrollment. The percentages shown in column 8 are found by deducting the number of non-resident pupils, if any, given in column 7 from the total high school registration recorded in column 6 and then dividing this remainder by the total number of pupils in the district. This shows what per cent of pupils in each community appears in its own high school.

It is believed that on the whole the figures are essentially correct save, perhaps, those of the seventh and eighth grades which, in certain instances, are apparently estimates or missing entirely.

Distribution of Enrollment in Pennsylvania High Schools, 1919-1920. This table shows the enrollment of all pupils in Pennsylvania schools pursuing secondary work, with their distribution according to years and sex.

TABLE 22

Statistics Pertaining to High School Graduates and Teachers. A table to show the number of graduates in all classes of Pennsylvania high schools with some indication of what they expected to do the following year; the number of full time and part time teachers, with a listing of the better grade of certificates held; number of periods taught per day per teacher; and the number of periods per day each principal was required to spend in an instructional relation.

Private Schools, with Enrollment of Secondary Pupils. Table 23 has been compiled from questionnaires sent to the heads of all private secondary institutions in the state. County and district superintendents were also requested to submit a list of all private schools in their districts, whether doing an elementary or secondary grade of work. As the response was prompt and measurably full it is believed that this first effort to report private schools will prove of value to those who seek such information.

Secondary school data include the names of the schools, their location, distribution of enrollments, number of pupils belonging to Pennsylvania, and number of teachers in the respective institutions. No statistics on elementary schools were requested.

Receipts and Expenditures of the State Normal Schools, 1919-1920. A table to show in full the receipts and expenditures of the thirteen state normal schools, arranged in accordance with the standard system of accounting adopted throughout the public schools. Receipts include all forms of income derived from state appropriations, from students, and from sundry minor sources. Expenditures are listed in detail for each school. A summary table is added for comparative purposes.

TABLE 25

Normal School Property. The total value of normal school property is shown in Table 25. This includes the value of grounds, buildings and equipment, with an inventory of the number of volumes in the several libraries.

Normal School Teachers and Students. In this table are grouped all statistics pertaining to the faculties and student bodies of the thirteen schools. The first item covers the number of teachers and other employees. The next designation aims to give detailed information concerning the classification of students, and certain comparisons with the former year. Students are classified as seniors, juniors, those pursuing secondary work, and the number enrolled in special departments. A record is also included of the number of students graduated during the year, and of the summer school attendance of 1919.

Statistics covering the teaching personnel and student enrollment of Cheyney Training School, a school for the training of colored teachers, is included in this table. While the institution does not receive any state subsidy, its scholastic standards and building equipment are such as to make them compare favorably with the other normal schools of the commonwealth.

TABLE 27

Normal School Training School Departments. This table shows the enrollments and character of gradation in the training departments maintained in the different state normal schools.

TABLES 28-29

County Institutes. General statistics pertaining to county institutes.

TABLES 30-33

Higher Institutions, Colleges and Universities. Statistics pertaining to colleges and universities in Pennsylvania accredited by the College and University Council are given in Tables 30-33. Table

30 aims to furnish data covering the dates of organization and chartering of the different institutions, the names of their presidents, size and method of appointment of their boards of trustees, and their designation as sectarian or non-sectarian in character and general control.

Table 31 seeks to show the standards of admission required in each institution, the student enrollment from Pennsylvania and from other states, the number of graduates during the current year, and the number of graduates since its foundation.

Table 32 covers the value and nature of property owned and controlled by each institution, and the census of each faculty.

Table 33 gives in detail the amount of productive endowments, sources and amount of receipts, and the distribution of expenditures for each college and university.

On account of not receiving full reports from a few institutions, the totals are to be accepted as representing only the data from the schools reporting.

TABLE 32. PERMANENT STATE SCHOOL FUND

Under the terms of the Act of Assembly, May 18, 1911, P. L. 309, the State School Fund is derived from "Eighty per centum of the net receipts and proceeds derived in any way from, or on account of, the forest reservation, now or hereafter acquired by this Commonwealth, together with all water-powers or water-rights belonging to this Commonwealth in the streams, rivers, lakes, or other waters of this Commonwealth, and all real estate owned by this Commonwealth which is not used for State or other public purposes, all escheated estates in this Commonwealth, and all other property or money which shall in any way accrue to such fund, whether by Act of Assembly, gift, devise, or otherwise, shall belong to and constitute a fund, to be known and designated as 'The State School Fund of Pennsylvania'."

This law was amended by Act of June 4, 1915, P. L. 825, Section 1, by which amendment provision was made to include the entire receipts and proceeds derived in any way from or on account of the forest reservations. There was also the further provision that the forest reservations should continue to be wholly under the control of the State Forest Reservation Commission as now provided by law.

The first money to accrue to the fund came from estates that escheated to the Commonwealth during the two years succeeding the enactment of the law. On May 1, 1913 the State Treasurer set aside, as properly belonging to the State School Fund, the sum of $41,329.69. In accordance with the law this sum was invested as promptly as possible in bonds, in which the savings bank of Pennsylvania are authorized by law to invest their deposits, the investment having been first approved by the Auditor General. The State School Fund, through the various accretions, amounted on July 1, 1920 to $495,144.02.

A list of the securities in which the fund is invested is appended. The State Board of Education is authorized to employ the income of the State School Fund toward equalizing educational advantages in different parts of the Commonwealth and also to use such part as it deems wise to further and promote education in the conservation of natural resources, and education in forestry, and agricultural and other industrial pursuits in the public schools of the Commonwealth.

The project of equalizing educational advantages in different parts of the Commonwealth is becoming an increasingly commanding one. There are many districts where the burden of taxation is excessive owing to the fact that the industries, which once sustained the population, have passed away but where still a considerable proportion of the people remain on lands that are very unproductive.

Up to this time expenditures of the income have been devoted to the aid of several districts where special provisions had to be made in order that the children of these communities might receive proper educational advantages.
